DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments, see remarks, filed 28 September 2006, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 1-2, 5-8, and 11-36 with regards to the Tanaka reference have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of Medvedeva et al., US Patent 7,039,896.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 27-34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. As amended, these claims are still drawn to a computer program. Programs taken alone are non-statutory. In order for these claims to become statutory, they must be re-written as computer readable medium storing instructions type claims. The computer readable medium must be claimed, not just alluded to in the preamble.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 2825

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-2, 5-9, and 11-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Medvedeva et al, US Patent No. 7,039,896.

In reference to claims 1, 7, 13-16, 19-25, 27-30, and 33-36, Medvedeva teaches a method of segmenting a mask layout and assigning an evaluation point to each segment (as exemplified in figure 4), and performing OPC according to a cost function that includes an aerial image gradients at the evaluation points of the segments (Column 4, line 43 – column 5, line 14).

In reference to claims 2 and 8, Medvedeva teaches correcting all the segments (column 6, line 20).

In reference to claims 5-6 and 11-12, 17-18, and 29-30, Medvedeva teaches wherein OPC is performed to correct rounded corners (column 1, line 67).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3-4 and 9-10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: Prior art of record does not teach wherein determining the normal shift for the two-dimensional segment includes: determining a nominal Shift, a maximum normal shift component due to the aerial image gradient, a measured angle of the aerial image gradient, a base angle where no shift is applied, a maximum normal shift component due to the aerial image magnitude, a measured aerial image magnitude, and a base magnitude where no shift is applied.
